

WNCC Basketball Adopted Parents Program

The booster parent program at WNCC is a program which matches up players with local families. The families open up their homes to the players in giving them a home-cooked meal every so often while inviting them to take part in family traditions. Many players also give back to the families in different ways. Some even consider their booster family as their family, coming back to visit or staying in contact with them after they leave WNCC for another college or the player's "real" family.
